Read Your Bible Daily.

The celebrated painter, Benjamin Robert Haydon, gave the following ad-mirable advice to his son at a very critical time of his life; "You are right to read history; make yourself master of the histories of Greece and Rome. The English people are in many respects not unlike the Arminians without their art, and like the Romans without their profligacy. Read your Bible daily. There is no more interesting book in the world, and it is becoming more necessary to read and study it, because I already perceive a tendency among our scientific men, in all their pride of knowledge and what they call discovery, to set the Bible aside as an oriental legend. Do not be-lieve them. The Mosaic account of the creation is the most simple and the most natural, and will be found, you may rely on it, confirmed by science, when science has got down to the real facts. Ceneralization, founded on our present knowledge of the laws of nature, is the very thing which our present acquaintance with these laws does not justify. I am convinced that no thoroughly established the spring bonnet and the new dress, and settled theory will be found to contradict the truths revealed in the Bible But you are too young yet for me to enter further on the subject. Licut. Cameron's Mory of His African Journey-Important Information Gathered. At the banquet given to this brave explorer on his arrival at Liverpool he gave this brief summary of his travels: 1 left England on the 30th of Novem er, 1872, and went to Zanzibar with sir Bartle Frere's mission. There were four of as—myself, Mr. Murphy, Dr. Dillon and Mr. Muffatt, a nephew of livingstone, who was too young for the ardship of the journey. After a great cal of difficulty in getting men, I started with my first caravan in company with Dr. Dillon in March, 1873, leaving Murphy and Moffatt behind. Moffatt un ortunately died before he rejoined us out Murphy went on with us over ountries traveled through before by Burton and Speke and Stanley, to Ur anyembe. Here Dr. Dillon was taken Il and had to go back, and I had difficul ies with some of the natives, who offered opposition. Let me say here that it was not with the better class of Arabs, whom have found to be in the lesst sense of be word configure. On Livingstone's The lecturer had experimented on the word, gentlemen. On Livingstone body coming in Dillon and Murphy went back with it, and Lafter much delay, traveled by the same rout as Burton and Stanley to Ujiji. There I met Arabs again and received aid at their hands. I spent over two months there in surveying Tangsmyika, and after rounding its southern end I found out what I always thought there must be an outlet on-its western shore. Thence order as they do in sleep. went to Nyangwe Livingstone's furthest, and found out that this outlet waters of the Conga. After in vain tryng to get beats. I went with an Arab Hamed ill-Hamed, to his camp to try to work my way to Lake Sankarra, intowhich the Lualaba falls; but the chief on the opposite bank refused a passage I then worked away to the south to where I thought there were Portuguse traders and the country of Kasonga, who is chief of Urna. I found another the Landaba, which is really the head Arab, Jumahiba-Salim, who was very kind to me. Here I fell in with a Por-tuge-se subject named Aloiz, who said he as going direct to the coast; but he was unreliable and deliaved me more than sinonths. During that time I was able to visit one lake and to see another named Congo. I afterwards followed down the water parting between the Zambesi and the Congo, until I got into the Congo basin and my examination nables me to say that they constitute one of the most magnificent systems of internal water communications in the orld. The Tanganyika and the Congo could be joined for the purpose of navi-gation by a canal thirty miles in length The riches of the country are unspeak able, and I could not attempt to describe them now; but I am sure that the cen tre of Africa, especially on the west side of the Tangauyika, is destined one day to be the scene of civilization and pro-

as It Sounds. estus J. C. Haro's New Book, our Italy The abolition of the religious instituions has been grievously felt throughout the country, and there are few even of the friends of Italian unity who have not had personal reason to experience its injustice. When "Days near Rome" appeared, one of the reviews regretted that its author should not rejoice that Italians were no longer called upon to support swarms of idlers in vestments and hordes of sturdy beggars in rags." This is exactly what Italians, with regard to the old ecclesiastical in stitutions, were not called upon to do The convents and monasteries were righly endowed; they had no need of being supported. It was, on the contrary rather they who supported the needy the sick, the helpless and the blind among the people, who received their daily dole of bread and soup from the cony at charities. When the marriage portions of the nuns were stolen by the evernment, there was scarcely any fam ily of the upper classes throughout cen-tral Italy who did not suffer; for almost all had a sister, aunt or cousin "in re-tigion" upon whom a partion of £1,000, £5,000, or £10,000, had been bestowed, and who was thrown, back helpless upor their hands, her fortune confiscated, and with an irregular paid pension of a few It is strange that it should not see it a affecting Englishmen, as in the case of the large tract of land which was purchased by the Rev. E. Douglass, upon the Equiline, and which was confiscated the government on the plea that it had been used for religious purposes These who declaim so loudly upon the advantages of Italian unity are often unaware of the extreme difference which exists between the people and the lan-guage in the north and south of Italythat a Venetian would not in the least out when the absurd red-tapeism of the government is put into action. For intance, when the heat makes it impossible for the troops in Naples and Palermo created a great sensation, and the to support their winter clothing, the soldiers shivering on the icy streets of Parma and Piacena are put into brown holland, because throughout "United

THE PHENOMENA OF DEATH. Under What Circumstattes the Final

Dissolution May be a Pleasure. New York Sun. Dr. Frederic R. Marvin gave the library club last evening a physician's view of death, his subject being "The Physiology of Death." The history of death embraces three periods, the fabulous, the superstitious, and the philosophical. The fabulous was in mythological times, in which death was personified as goddess Mors, the glance of whose eye was fatal; the superstitious era was that long period in which death was regarded as an instantaneous change; a stroke that came and cut off life from the whole body at once. Ours is the dogs, to discover the order of time in which the senses die. To one dog he gave arseneous acid. The second died instantly upon his introducing a needle into the medulla oblongata; and the third he bled to death. In the last, the order of death was, sight, taste, smell, hearing, touch; which established the fact that senses disappeared in the same

The human body is an aggregation of cells. Life is the segementation of these cells; death their disintegration. Each cell dies for itself. Every moment cells are springing into life. Every moment are springing into life. cells are dying. Our bodies are com-posed of these little points. Take them away and there is nothing left of us but the connecting shreds. There are dead cells in your body, and when you are dead, there will for some time continue to be living ones. We shall all at some time be resolved into carbonic acid, water, and the mineral elements.

The whole surface of our globe, said the speaker, has been dug over one hundred and twenty-eight times to bury its dead, even not recknning the long age of the world which is given it by modern science, and we inhale, we feed upon elements, the very atoms, that have been living human beings before. The dead, he continued, live again, and we greet them in the perfume of the city, in the thousand leaves of the forest.

Death, the doctor says, is painless There is no moment in our lives in which molecular death is not going on in us. The last words of a multitude of persons indicate that mere disintegration is painless. To die of cold, after the first agony is over, is luxury. So is drowning. The smile of death, the placidity of death omes to all features after the rigor mor tos. That is over in three days,

Shroeder's Centennial Air-Ship. Philadelphia Times, W. F. Shroeder, a young German en

thusiast upon the subject of ballooning, sent to the select and common councils last Thursday a proposition to illuminhastening the opening up of this part of Africa I shall consider myself amply reby means of an "air-ship" and calcium lights and reflectors, for the modest re-muneration of $750. The Sunday World interviewed him on Saturday, and was shown a diagram of the vessel, which the inventor explained. The "ship," which is now in course of construction, is to be one hundred and thirty feet long, fifty feet high, and fifty feet through the center. The inner balloon is of twill mushin, of which it contains one thousand eight hundred yards, while the outer balloon, which covers one third of the inner and forms a parachute in case of accident, is of eight-ounce canvas duck The beat underneath the balloon is made of wire, is seventy-five feet long, five feet high, and is upheld horizontally by wire She has three rudders, one at either side amidships and one large one aft. Her propelling power is a pulling fan, screw, in the bow, which will be driven up to two hundred revolutions per minute, if necessary, by a ten-horse "hydro-carbon engine," which can be driven for twenty-four hours on one gallon. The whole apparatus, including the gas, will weigh four thousand five hundred and eighty pounds, and the lifting power of the ship will be twenty-seven thousand, for the hydrogen gas Mr. Shroeder in tends to use has an elevating power of one and one-quarter ounces per cubic toot, the weight of the four thousand two hundred and eighty cubic feet of gas employed being one pound. For illuminating purposes the inventor proposes with an irregular pand pension of a pence a day, quite insufficient for the most miserable subsistence. The English press is slow to see the injustice of pended from the car, in which will be the apparatus of the calcium lights. Mr. Shroeder is most sanguine of success, and declares that from a height of five or six hundred feet he will illuminate an area of four miles. If the conneils accep-Mr. Shroeder's offer, and the air-shi should happen to prove a success and obey its inventor's will, the centennial exhibition will have added to it a feature that will attract the attention of the whole scientific world. The murder of it is very interesting. He killed the woman with a wash-board during a quarrel, and probably did not intend to holland, because throughout "United strike the fatal blow. After the murder, Italy" the same order must take effect. Randolph cut the body up and buried it in his garden, planting corn and beans over the spot. Several days after, Rob-ert Coe, the father of the missing woman, related with great impressive ness the particulars of a dream which he had on three successive night-He said that Mary Ann came to him crawling on her hands, and when he asked her why she did not walk, she replied that she could not, for her legs had been cut off. Each night she appeared to him on the borders of a small brook which then ran at the foot of the garden. At last the garden was examined, and the body was found .- Spring field (Mass.) Republican.

It seem: that the memory of this woman, like that of her renowned bushand, is likely to be kept alive to the end of time. She is said to have poscessed a very irritable temper, and her name has become a synonym of vixen," or "sould." It is more than possible, however, that the judgment passed upon her by mankind has been too severe. A more charitable disposition would undoubtedly have discovered in her many good qualities, and have attributed her failings more to physical infirmities than to moral obliquity. The party most intimately acquainted with her, and therefore best able to form a correct opinion, gives her credit for many domestic virtues. It is now well known that many of the diseases to which women are subject have a direct tendency to render subject have a direct tendency to render them irritable, poevish, cross, morese, un-reasonable, so that they chafe and fret over all those little fils and annovances that a all those little fits and annoyances that a person in health would bear with composure. It is fair to infer that most of the tantrums of Nantippe were due to these causes alone; and could Socrates, as he returned from the Senate, the Gymnasium, or the Atheneum, have stopped at Pestle & Mortar's Drug Store and carried home a bottle of Dr. Pierce's and carried home a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, now and then, no doubt he might have evaded many a "cur-tain lecture," allayed many a "domestic tain lecture," allayed many a "domestic broil," made it much pleasanter for the chi-dren, and more colovable for himself, and rescued his wife's mane from the unenviable. world-wide, and eternal netority it has at-tained. Thousands of women bless the day on which Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was first made known to them. A single hattle often gives delicate and suffering wo-men more relief than months of treatment from their family physician. In all those derangements causing backache, dragging down sensations, nervous and general debil-its, it is a sovereign remedy.
